DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (If known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This structure is a three story building attached with three bays. The building is constructed of brick.

The roof of the building is flat with a rear chimney. The main entrance of the building is at left with rectangular door and transom. There is a vestibule and first floor store front. The second and third floor consists of full story windows. Each floor has three windows. The center window on each floor is larger than two side windows which are the same size on second and third floor.

Aside from the unique window treatment it is important to note the amount and type of adornment on the front of this building. Each of the decorations is simple in the Classic Revival style but taken altogether there appears to be a significant amount of ornamentation.

There are cornices over the first and second floor as well as the third floor. The first and second floor cornices are the same except size - the second floor cornice being smaller. The cornice atop the third floor is classical and large. It has five anthemions on top of the cornice spaced at equal intervals, each appearing to be about two feet tall.
